The Fifth Florida Supply Chain Summit Convenes on September 9-11 in Miami

(MIAMI) – The Florida Supply Chain Summit, a gathering of key industry, academic, economic development, professional organization, and government officials, will meet on September 9-11 to discuss trends, innovations, and workforce issues critical to further elevating Florida as a hub for trade and logistics in the U.S. and the world.

As with previous years' summits in Tampa and Orlando, several hundred industry experts will gather, network, and share insights on trade and logistics. Presenters will cover the growth of Florida's manufacturing and supply chain, the state's booming cruise industry, retail and wholesale distribution, and how dynamic new technologies are saving money—and jobs—in the ever-changing industry.

Representatives from several top officials; Florida's largest seaports and Space Florida will attend the summit, which began in 2019.
